THE - Diary of a 49'er

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

SEPETMBER 29, 1850—We have worked on the ditch all the week, making it twice as large. The dirt on the flat is twenty feet deep and the more water we have the quicker we can sluice it off. I haven't much faith in its paying, although the bank on the creek prospects pretty well. I think Jack—that's our dog—is mighty ungrateful. I bought him and lugged him to the cabin when he couldn't walk and now he has got no particular use for me, but he just worships Anderson. Sleeps on the foot of his bunk nights, follows at his heels every minute of the day, or makes a bed of his coat alongside the claim; and if Anderson happens to get out of sight, howls and runs around like a crazy beast. When I mentioned it to Anderson

LOOMIS MAN TELLS CANDIDACY FOR 6TH DIST. ASSEMBLYMAN

FRANCIS C. LINDSAY
Candidate for Assembly

LOOMIS: Francis C. Lindsay of Loomis, Placer County, has announced his candidacy for Assemblyman for the 6th Assembly District. Lindsay, who lives with his wife and three year old son on their fruit ranch one half mile northwest of Loomis, is a well known fruit producer. For the past several years he has been active in country and community activities. He graduated from the Roseville Union High School, Sacramento Junior College, and in 1936, from the University of California at Berkeley. His studies led him into becoming a specialist in soil and water conservation. He served for several years as a Farm Planner in the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and has demonstrated on his ranches the benefits of a complete conservation program.

Lindsay is now President of the Placer County Soil Conservation District, Vice Chairman of the Placer County Water Users Association, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Loomis Congregational Church, Member of the California Fruit Exchange, Local Committeeman for the PMA Program, and a member of several local and national organizations.

In announcing his candidacy, Lindsay states: "The 6th District, being the largest in area in the State and consisting of ten separate counties, makes it most difficult for any candidate to intelligently acquaint the voters with his ability, sincerely, and beliefs. Because of the diversity of different activities by which we earn our living but which must still be carefully integrated, demands of the representatives of this District that they serve all groups equally without favoritism. I believe my training and experience in the basic needs of soil and water conservation for the foohill and mountainous area of our State coupled with my past record of unstinted support of all things progressive and beneficial to our particular foothill economy has proven that I will do my utmost to serve our District honestly and intelligently."

NORTH SAN JUAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

North San Juan was founded early
By our sturdy pioneers
And they kept it fairly humming
Through the gay, exciting years;
Through long years it grew and prospered,
Shaded by its fragrant pines,
Till the whole land knew the story
Of its great hydraulic mines.
Then there came a time of trouble,
When the roaring mines were still
And the somber shadows deepened
Over canyon, stream and hill;
But the olden spirit lingered,
North San Juan refused to die,
Here she stood and here she waited
As the empty years rolled by.
North San Juan is now resurgent,
She is on the march once more,
Looking to a brighter future
Than the past she knew of yore;
Modern pioneers will guard her,
Gay and prosperous she must be,
For the force that leads her onward,
Is her stalwart C of C.

—Adeline Merriam Conner.

Dedicated to the Chamber of Commerce of North San Juan, California, January 15th, 1948.

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder now what steps to take,
What methods to pursue,
If we would teach the boys and girls
To think and plan and do.

Judging by what we hear, we are sometimes led to fer that our worthy legislators in their hours of relaxation, turn thei minds to educational problems. At least there are rumors.

The general public has been told by teachers and others who are in a position to know, that our educational system needs overhauling. Teachers' salaries are woefully inadequate, school and college equipment is intiquate, schools are crowded, in fact, the entire system needs rejuvenation to bring it up to date and make it increasingly useful to the boys and girls of this rapidly changing world.

There never was a greater need for sound educational methods and superior educational advantages than there is at the present time. The first step toward a general improvement of existing conditions, would be to increase the salaries of all teachers in order that the teaching profession may offer a future to those who desire to teach, and induce more scholarly men and women into the profession.

I often wonder about first steps as taken by the little ones whom we send to our primary schools; what are the most important things for them to learn, what are the most essential first studies? I used to thing that reading was the most important, but now I'm not s osure. One can't read, until one knows the value and meaning of words. In order to know and evaluate words and their various shades of meaning, one must first learn to handle the dictionary; in order to use the dictionary, one must know how to spell. Imagine the time wasted in searching for a word which begins with the prefix pre, when you are uncompromisingly concinced that it begins with per. That is only one sample of the trouble we find if using Webster's big book without an exact and assured knowledge of spelling. Well then, isn't spelling our most essential first study and can we glide instead of stumble along the path to an adequate education until we are adepts? Let us revise the old bromide about readin', writin' and 'rithmetic, "and cause it to say, "spellin', readin', etc."

I think it was Teddy Roosevelt who advised phonetic spelling and of course if our English words were always pronounced as they are spelled, spelling would be robbed of its ability to trick and trip us up; still, there is the noble ancestry of words to be considered and the information concerning peoples, history and other things which may be gained by looking up the origin of words and tracing them down to their present positions in the language, I think we'll have to place spelling books in the hands of our little ones and it wouldn't be a bad idea if many of us, myself definitely included, were to find our old spelling books and study the words and definitions contained therein.

he looked serious and said: "Don't get jealous, old fellow; you've got the folks at home and Hetty—I've got nothing but Jack, and a dog's love is better than none," and he walked out with the dog at his heels wagging his stump of a tail. I was completely upset. Anderson sat out under the pine tree for an hour with the dog's head in his lap and then came in cheerful-like, slapped me on the back and said: "Don't mind me being grumpy, I've got you too; but white man is mighty uncertain.

OCTOBER 6, 1850—We turned the water into the ditch Monday and sluiced out the flat until Thursday. That afternoon a deputation of miners from below us on the creek came to the claim and notified us that we must quit. The mud we were sending down the stream buried them under slumgullion, and the water was so thick they could not use it in their rockers. Anderson said that was reasonable and that we would hold up until we could think of some scheme to remedy it.

We have talked it over and I don't see how we can avoid it unless we wait until the creek below is all worked out. The nights are cold and we have to keep up a fire in the fireplace. Kellogg was over from Brush Creek to look at our ditch. Says he is going to make a survey this week to bring the water into Brush Creek and if it is feasible he will give us four hundred dollars for the piece we have dug. They say he has made a pile of money and has bought up a lot of claims on Shelby Hill.

OCTOBER 13, 1850—There has not been a drop of rain, nor has there been a cloud in the sky since May last; but it thickened up early in the week and Tuesday night when I awoke the rain was pattering on the roof—a regular old-fashioned storm. Anderson woke up, too, and we got up and started a big fire and sat and listened to the gusts of wind blowing through the pine tree tops and sheets of water slapping up against the south side of the cabin. The rain sounded good. The whole country was dusty and dried up, and I felt as if I wanted to go out and stand bareheaded in the storm. It rained all day Wednesday, and Anderson, who went up to the claim in the afternoon, came back laughing and said he did not think the miners would bother us for a while on the slumgullion question. There was four feet of water in Rock Creek and rocks rolling down it as big as a bushel basket. It did not quit until Thursday afternoon. It washed out the head of the ditch and we have not fixed it up eyt. Jack is in disgrace. He ran down a skunk Friday and we just couldn't stand him ni the cabin until Anderson used up all our soap washing him. He smells yet. We haven't made a dollar for two weeks.

OCTOBER 20, 1058—We got the ditch repaired and the water turned on the flat by Thursday and have been running off the top dirt. It's amazing the amount we move and it astonishes all our neighbors. A lot of them are looking out for side hill diggings below us and will try the same process. Anderson says it will be a good idea to extend our ditch and sell the water to the miners who might want to use it, but I don't see what right we have got to it more than anybody else. Anyway, he has put a notice at the head of the ditch claiming all the water it will hold, and as there is no law in the case he says he will make a law out of the precedent.

(NOTE: The first claim to water rights on record in Nevada County).

Had a letter from Henry North from Sacramento Says he has been working there and has a great chance to make money if he had the capital. Asks me to loan him a thousand dollars Anderson say to "go slow." I'd do it for Hetty's sake, but he ought to have written before this A lot of miners have gone about forty miles north of her on another branch of the river where they say rich coarse gold diggings have been discovered A pack mule load of gold was brought to town from there last week and there was one piece worth three thousand dollars and lots from an ounce to twenty ounces. Many of the miners think this is the discovery of the source of gold; that it, where it grows. There is one fact that bears out this theory. The higher the miners get up in the mountains, the coarser the gold. Around Nevada County, so far as I know, it is seldom that a nugget is found that weighs over an ounce, while up on Kanaka Creek one has been found the weighs twenty-one pounds and several from five to fifteen pounds and I am told that there is very little fine dust in those diggings. I hope they won't find the fountain head until I have turned my gold into some kind of property.

OCTOBER 27, 1850—We have had a great week. There is a streak up through the middle of our flat that is lousy with gold. We took out one hundred and eleven ounces and only worked a small portion of what we uncovered. We had a meeting of the miners at our place yesterday afternoon to decide in regard to ditch and water rights. and it was a hot one. Some of them claimed that water was as free as air and no one had a right to monopolize it, and they would have carried the day, but Anderson proposed as a compromise that all interested should pitch in and build a ditch on shares. As there were only a dozen or so who had any use for the water outside of the creek bed, this was agreed to. There are the ones who have taken up flat claims like ours and are anxious to prospect them. We give our ditch to the company and have a one-sixth interest in the extensions. I don't see what good it will do, but Anderson says common consent makes law and the action will establish our rights. Have had two good letters from home Mother wants me to return for Thanksgiving and I'd like to be there, but the chances to get rich are too good to leave now. Dad writes that he has bargained for the Slocum Farm for four thousand dollars, and if I have another lucky week I will send him the balance. Somehow I don't feel so eager to go back and live on it as I did three months ago

NOVEMBER 3, 1850—Another fair week, although not so good as the previous one We are working the flat about fourty feet wide and the sides do not pay as well as the middle streak, but we took out sixty-five ounces The miners have been driven out of the creek by too much water and a great many have left for other diggings. There are two men cutting the extension to our ditch. Spent a day in Nevada City, as they call it now. There are over two thousand miners working in the vicinity. My little Frenchwoman has gone away. I asked for her and they told me she was dealing over at Centerville.

(NOTE: The Grass Valley of today was first named Centerville because it was midway between the two more important mining towns of Rough and Ready and Nevada City).

There is no particular reason why I should be so much interested, although I was disappointed in not seeing her.

A minister preached in the United States Hotel dining room and the place was filled, but there were only three women in the crowd. I was told he took up a collection and raked in four hundred dollars. That is as good as mining and not as hard work. Our minister in Norfolk would be satisfied with that much for a year.

NOVEMBER 10, 1850—Anderson was taken sick Thursday and has been out of his head for two days. I got a doctor from town and he says he has a bilious fever and with good care he will come out all right. I've got to like Anderson mighty well and I should feel bad if anything should happen to him. His crazy talk in his delirium was mostly about his wife. I guess they had a flare-up about her extravagance and other foolishness, and that's why he left and what makes him so grumpy about home matters. Poor Jack has been miserable, licking Anderson's hands and face and whining like a sick baby, and I had to tie him up

Only Richmond Tires can give you modern Relaxed Performance. Change to a set today.
